YOUTH ARE AT RISK

Being a teenager can be tough. While everyone struggles sometimes, research shows marijuana is not a healthy way to cope and can even have serious consequences.

YOUR BRAIN

Your teenage brain is a work in progress. Marijuana can affect your brain's ability to build connections crucial to your growth and development.

YOUR SUCCESS

Marijuana impacts your memory, concentration and coordination, making it harder to succeed in the classroom, on the basketball court or at work.

YOUR MENTAL HEALTH

Marijuana can intensify feelings of depression and anxiety, and high doses of THC have been linked to panic attacks and psychosis in teenage users.

YOUR PHYSICAL HEALTH

Smoking marijuana can impact your physical health, especially your lungs. Vaping is especially harmful and has been associated with over 2,000+ cases of lung injuries that have resulted in hospitalization and even death.
